

The NSW Architects Code of Professional Conduct requires architects to undertake continuing professional development (CPD). The minimum commitment is 20 hours of which 10 hours must be formal. In response to COVID-19, the Board has implemented a one-off reduction in CPD requirements for all architects, equivalent to a pro-rata exemption for the 3-months of COVID-19 disruption in this reporting period. For the 2019-2020 reporting period, Architects should undertake a minimum of 15 hours of CPD (instead of 20 hours), of which at least 10 hours must be Formal CPD activity. At annual renewal, an architect is required to declare that they have taken all reasonable steps to maintain and improve the skills and knowledge necessary for the provision of the architectural services that the architect normally provides.

Architects may choose to complete this form, or provide similar records of CPD activities including date, activity, location, category of activity (either formal or informal), relationship to the National Standard of Competency for Architects including; Design, Documentation, Project Delivery or Practice Management, and the hours claimed.

Records of CPD activities should be kept for at least five (5) years.

Formal activities should relate to practice as an architect, and have stated learning outcomes that are formally assessed or have significant interaction between the presenter and the learner.

Informal activities should also relate to practice as an architect; learning outcomes can be identified, but do not include any form of assessment.

If you check this statement you must send in your record of activity together with the reasons why you have not met the minimum requirement. See Information Sheet 7 - Architects and CPD - for more information.
